

Doctor of Project Management

Program Description:

The Doctor of Project Management programme gives students the chance to study how to create projects and relate that information to effective implementation. In Doctor of Project Management programme, students have the chance to develop research and writing skills, project training skills, and project development skills. The core programme includes instruction in research design, research strategies, methodology, and scholarly writing. The specialization focuses on topics of research. All students in the Doctor of Project Management program must complete a doctoral dissertation as part of their degree program.

Program Prerequisites:

Students entering this program may benefit from experience in project design or interactive training. Students with previously completed master's degree programs will meet the basis of admission to this program. Applicants to IUBS's online graduate programs should already possess a bachelor's degree.

Assessments:

Assignments and Dissertation